

POSSIBLE CHARADE PROMPTS

Scenes from the story: Is it Nyasha (open to the world) or Manyara (not open to the world)?

Nyasha tends her garden carefully and welcomes the snake with open hands. She is joyful as she works.

Nyasha notices the hungry boy along the path and offers him some food.

Nyasha notices an old woman pointing the way to the city and thanks her with a pouch of sunflower seeds.

Nyasha marvels at the beauty of the city and shares this excitement with her father.

Manyara is in a bad mood and teases her sister.

Manyara refuses to share any food with the boy she meets on the way to the city. She has only enough for herself.

Manyara refuses the advice of the old woman and again displays her bad temper in responding to the woman.

Manyara ignores the man along the path.

Scenes from life: Are the actors open to the world or not open to the world?

Someone gives you a gift and you hug him or her.

You enjoy a nice conversation together focused on each other, laughing and sharing stories.

You invite someone to play with you on the playground.

You bring a special treat and share with everyone in the class.

You notice that someone feels left out when you are talking and you invite them to be a part of your conversation.

You read the schedule for the day and are excited about an activity or lesson you see listed.

You are sitting down for dinner but one or both of you are on your cell phone during the dinnertime.

You ignore someone on the playground because you don't want to play with him or her.

Someone gives you a gift but you don't open it and throw it away.

You share secrets and leave someone out.

You share a special treat with some of your friends at the lunch table but leave others out.

You read the schedule for the day and decide to complain about the things you don't want to do.